Instructions — Please Read Carefully

In this experiment, you will complete 16 questions.

Each question will involve a hotel review, and your task is to decide whether the review is truthful (written by a real customer) or deceptive (fake, written to create a misleading impression of the hotel).

For every question, you will go through the following steps:

1.
Make your own judgment: Read the review carefully and decide whether it is truthful or deceptive.
2.
Rate your confidence: Indicate how confident you are in your decision.
3.
Review the AI explanation: You will then see an AI's explanation about why the review is considered truthful or deceptive.
4.
Reconsider your decision: After reading the explanation, you will be asked whether you want to keep or change your answer.
5.
Rate your confidence again: Indicate your confidence level after seeing the AI explanation.
6.
Evaluate the explanation: Finally, rate how convincing the AI's explanation was for you.

Now, you will solve a demo task to understand before the experiment begins. Thank you!

Q1

Now the real experiment begins!

13. Review: The James Chicago Hotel is located right in the heart of the one and only, downtown Chicago. This wonderful hotel has many classy and down to earth boutique's, and the views are breath-taking. The hotel just has a warm feeling to it, and the hotel staff is more than excellent. This hotel is situated right across from the Magnificent Mile, and only minutes away from the world famous shopping, dining, and fun for all ages. The James is modern and luxurious. The James is definately a hotel that I would recommend and will go back to in years to come. *

15. Review: The James Chicago Hotel is located right in the heart of the one and only, downtown Chicago. This wonderful hotel has many classy and down to earth boutique's, and the views are breath-taking. The hotel just has a warm feeling to it, and the hotel staff is more than excellent. This hotel is situated right across from the Magnificent Mile, and only minutes away from the world famous shopping, dining, and fun for all ages. The James is modern and luxurious. The James is definately a hotel that I would recommend and will go back to in years to come. *

AI Explanation: The review seems overly positive and uses exaggerated language, such as "one and only", "breath-taking", and "more than excellent", which is a common trait of deceptive reviews. The reviewer also mentions several features of the hotel, but lacks specific details or personal experiences, making the review sound more like a marketing pitch. Additionally, the review's perfect tone and lack of criticism raises suspicions about its authenticity.

18. Review: This hotel was not worth it. From the moment we walked into the hotel lobby through check out, the staff were rude and contemptuous. Rooms were only serviceable, and certainly did not live up to the pompous self-descriptions on the website. The bathroom porthole and sliding door were odd and inconvenient. The 'fitness centre' was tiny and poor. We would not come here again. *

20. Review: This hotel was not worth it. From the moment we walked into the hotel lobby through check out, the staff were rude and contemptuous. Rooms were only serviceable, and certainly did not live up to the pompous self-descriptions on the website. The bathroom porthole and sliding door were odd and inconvenient. The 'fitness centre' was tiny and poor. We would not come here again. *

AI Explanation: The reviewer provides specific details about their negative experiences, including the behavior of the staff, the condition of the rooms, and the quality of the fitness centre, which suggests a genuine and honest assessment of their stay. The tone is critical but not overly dramatic or exaggerated, which further supports the idea that the review is truthful. The reviewer also mentions specific features of the hotel, such as the bathroom porthole and sliding door, which adds to the credibility of their account.

23. Review: I had to go down to Chicago one weekend for the graduation ceremony of my cousin. It was a sudden trip and I didn't even have the time to book a hotel before hand. When I showed up in Chicago and asked my taxi driver to take me to the nearest good hotel, he took me to Omni Chicago Hotel. I was impressed with how clean it was and they didn't have a problem with getting me a room even though I didn't have a reservation. The staff was friendly to me the entire time I was in the hotel, which was just a short two nights, and the cleaning service was top notch. *

25. Review: I had to go down to Chicago one weekend for the graduation ceremony of my cousin. It was a sudden trip and I didn't even have the time to book a hotel before hand. When I showed up in Chicago and asked my taxi driver to take me to the nearest good hotel, he took me to Omni Chicago Hotel. The staff was friendly to me the entire time I was in the hotel, which was just a short two nights, and the cleaning service was top notch. *

AI Explanation: The reviewer's story seems plausible, as they claim to have made a last-minute trip to Chicago and were able to get a room at the Omni Chicago Hotel without a reservation, which is possible if the hotel had available rooms. The reviewer also provides specific details about their stay, such as the cleanliness and friendly staff, which adds to the credibility of the review. The tone of the review is also neutral and matter-of-fact, without overly promotional language, which suggests that it is a genuine account of their experience.

28. Review: We stayed in the Amalfi in July 2010, 4th of July weekend. I was very apprehensive about leaving my Diesel Ford Excursion with the valet at Amalfi. It has a few modifications to the engine and can be damaged if not operated correctly. I explained the procedure to the valet drivers, and felt like it was a complete waste of time. When the vehicle was returned to me the valet driver did not let it idle down and cool the turbo off as I had instructed. When I tried to start it, it wasn't happy, but did finally start. I was so relieved to get it back I just wanted to leave. Driving away I noticed that the top speed recorded on the GPS was 105mph!!! (previous top speed was 95mph, done a few days earlier driving across South Dakota). I could just picture the flying Ferrari scene in Ferris Bueller's Day Off. I couldn't imagine where in the crowded Chicago traffic they found a place to go that fast, though it wouldn't take long to make that happen (see reference to modified engine above). A little while later we stopped for lunch and I noticed a dent in the front bumper. I contacted the hotel and was referred to their claims people. No remedy. Lesson learned. Brett *

30. Review: We stayed in the Amalfi in July 2010, 4th of July weekend. I was very * apprehensive about leaving my Diesel Ford Excursion with the valet at Amalfi. AI Explanation: The reviewer's story seems exaggerated and unlikely, with details such as the valet driving a modified vehicle at 105mph in crowded Chicago traffic being highly improbable. Additionally, the mention of a specific movie reference and the tone of the review suggest that the author is trying to entertain or persuade rather than provide a genuine account of their experience. The lack of a resolution or apology from the hotel is also not surprising, given the outlandish nature of the claims.

The staff welcomed us and catered to our every need. The rooms were plush and very romantic. Interior decor was breathtaking. It is definitely above a 4 star rating and I would not think twice about coming back here. It received my highest recommendation. *

AI Explanation: The review seems overly positive and lacks specific details, which raises suspicions about its authenticity. The use of generic superlatives such as "one of the finest", "elegance and beauty", and "breathtaking" suggests a potentially fabricated review. The reviewer's failure to mention any negative aspects or provide unique experiences also contributes to the impression that the review may be deceptive.

38. Review: I was in Chicago for a convention and stayed at the Sheraton towers. I * had a negative experience because I got about one dozen very painful bites by bed bugs on my torso. It made attending the conference uncomfortable. The staff changed the sheets but could not move me to another room, as the conference had booked the whole hotel. After the sheets were changed, I got no more bites, thankfully. Despite this, I managed to enjoy the stay. I liked the location next to the river, and the fact that it was easy to walk to Magnificent Mile.

It made attending the conference uncomfortable. The staff changed the sheets but could not move me to another room, as the conference had booked the whole hotel. After the sheets were changed, I got no more bites, thankfully. Despite this, I managed to enjoy the stay. I liked the location next to the river, and the fact that it was easy to walk to Magnificent Mile.

AI Explanation: The reviewer provides a specific and detailed account of their negative experience with bed bugs, including the actions taken by the staff, which suggests a genuine and honest review. The fact that they mention both positive and negative aspects of their stay, such as enjoying the location despite the bed bug issue, adds to the review's credibility. The reviewer's tone is also matter-of-fact and lacking in exaggeration, which further supports the conclusion that the review is truthful.

AI Explanation: The review provides specific details about the hotel, such as its old-fashioned charm and proximity to shopping opportunities, which suggests that the author has actually stayed at the hotel. The reviewer also mentions their personal experience, including accompanying their husband on a business trip, which adds a personal touch to the review. The tone of the review is also positive and enthusiastic, but not overly promotional, which further supports its authenticity.

48. Review: Not worth the price, even a little bit. A week prior to scheduled check-in, receiving an email for a room upgrade and accepting, of course, upon arrival, nobody knows about it. Typical. After nobody was doing anything about it, I notified them of this stay's review will be posted on the newly-developing TheChicagoCritic . Com, all of a sudden they figured out the problem and even offered an early check-in. Too little, Too late. Very small room with 2 queens instead of the 'Select King' I was supposed to have. Windows didnt open, TV took forever to change channels and the bathroom fan was not controllable. The fabulous Lodge Net system that every hotel in the world uses for ease of checkout for guests, well there was no check out feature. 50. Review: Not worth the price, even a little bit. A week prior to scheduled check-in, receiving an email for a room upgrade and accepting, of course, upon arrival, nobody knows about it. Typical. After nobody was doing anything about it, I notified them of this stay's review will be posted on the newly-developing TheChicagoCritic . The faboulous Lodge Net system that every hotel in the world uses for ease of checkout for guests, well there was no check out feature. This shit hole couldn't hold a candle to the Las Vegas Hard Rock! *

AI Explanation: The reviewer's use of extreme language, such as "shit hole", and comparison to a well-known luxury hotel like the Las Vegas Hard Rock, suggests an exaggerated and biased tone. Additionally, the reviewer's claim that they would post a review on a newly-developing website, which may not even exist, and the hotel's sudden resolution of issues after being notified of this, implies a potential attempt to manipulate the hotel into providing better service. The overly negative and emotive language used throughout the review further supports the conclusion that it is deceptive.

53. Review: From checkin to departure a poorly run hotel. It took 30 minutes in line to check in because only one clerk was on duty. Another person, perhaps the manager, was in the back room but never came out to help the check in clerk even as the line grew. The hotels elevators are small resulting in 10 minute waits to get up and down floors, especially when 1 of the 3 breaks, as seems to be frequent occurrence. After specifically asking for a room away from the elevators, I was assigned to a room directly across from them, necessitating another 20 minute wait in line. The room smelled of mildew and water dripped from the ceiling the first night. I requested a news paper be delivered to my room - it appeared on the morning and never again. Basically, the hotel is understaffed and poorly trained. Never again !

AI Explanation: The review provides specific details about the hotel's issues, such as long check-in lines, poorly functioning elevators, and a room with mildew smell and water dripping from the ceiling. The reviewer also mentions their personal interactions with staff, including requesting a newspaper delivery that never arrived. This level of specificity and personal experience suggests that the review is an honest account of the reviewer's stay.

58. Review: My wife and I stayed at the Conrad Chicago Hilton a few weeks back. *
I had a conference in the Windy City, and my wife decided she'd come along to do some shopping. First off let me say, typically I LOVE staying in hotels - any chance I get, i'll spend it away from home in a comfy hotel bed. That said, this place was terrible. The room had a slight odor to it, kind of a fishy smell. The people at the front desk were rude to us. And I found a soiled pair of women's panties under the bed. Gross! Not to mention that once we got home, we both had bug bites up and down our legs--- now we're worried we brought bedbugs home with us! If I could take this trip back I would. What a terrible place. Shame on you Conrad Hilton, shame on you!

AI Explanation: The review is overly dramatic and contains several red flags that suggest it's not genuine. The reviewer claims to love hotels, but then proceeds to trash the Conrad Chicago Hilton in an extremely negative manner, using language that's almost hyperbolic ("terrible", "shame on you"). Additionally, the mention of finding a soiled pair of women's panties under the bed is a common trope used by fake reviewers trying to make their review sound more believable.

Q11

63. Review: I was scheduled to stay at the Hard Rock in June, but had to cancel. I had booked the hotel back in January. When I called six days before my arrival date to cancel, I was told that I would be charged for my stay because I did not cancel seven days in advance. I told the customer service rep that I had never heard of such a practice, but she said, in a very smug manner, that I was told back in January. I honestly don't remember being told of the cancellation policy, but think it is a unprofessional practice to capture some additional dollars since it is not an industry standard to require a seven day cancellation policy when you book directly with the hotel. I, for one, will never stay at a Hard Rock hotel and will make sure that my friends and business associates know of this unfair practice. *

I, for one, will never stay at a Hard Rock hotel and will make sure that my friends and business associates know of this unfair practice. *

AI Explanation: The reviewer's tone is overly negative and accusatory, suggesting a personal vendetta against the Hard Rock hotel. They also make unsubstantiated claims about the hotel's cancellation policy being an "unfair practice" and imply that the customer service representative was smug and trying to scam them. This suggests that the review is motivated by a desire to harm the hotel's reputation rather than provide a genuine account of their experience.

68. Review: I made my reservation at the Hilton Chicago believing I was going to be staying in a classy hotel with many amenities. Unfortunately, my stay at the Hilton Chicago went downhill from the moment I checked in. There was only one clerk at the front desk, and several guests already waiting ahead of me. Once I finally got checked in and located my room, I discovered that neither of my room keys worked and had to make my way back to the front desk. Finally I made it into my room. It appeared nice enough until I went to use the bathroom and found the toilet clogged. The manager moved me into a new room, so I can't complain too much, but still it was a hassle. Finally settled, I was able to relax for the rest of my evening and was looking forward to sleeping in the next morning. That is -- until the front desk called me at 5 am with a wake up call I had not requested! Needless to say, my overall experience with this hotel left much to be desired and I will choose other accommodations for my next trip to Chicago. *

70. Review: I made my reservation at the Hilton Chicago believing I was going to be staying in a classy hotel with many amenities. Unfortunately, my stay at the Hilton Chicago went downhill from the moment I checked in. There was only one clerk at the front desk, and several guests already waiting ahead of me. Once I finally got checked in and located my room, I discovered that neither of my room keys worked and had to make my way back to the front desk. Finally I made it into my room. It appeared nice enough until I went to use the bathroom and found the toilet clogged. The manager moved me into a new room, so I can't complain too much, but still it was a hassle. Finally settled, I was able to relax for the rest of my evening and was looking forward to sleeping in the next morning. That is -- until the front desk called me at 5 am with a wake up call I had not requested! Needless to say, my overall experience with this hotel left much to be desired and I will choose other accommodations for my next trip to Chicago. *

AI Explanation: The reviewer provides a detailed account of their negative experience at the Hilton Chicago, including specific incidents such as long wait times, faulty room keys, and a wake-up call they didn't request. Their tone is also consistent with a genuine complaint, expressing frustration and disappointment rather than attempting to manipulate or deceive readers.

73. Review: Stayed here for 5 nights while visiting Chicago for the first time. The location is great, the hotel has been recently renovated and our room was very spacious with two bathrooms. The lobby is a great place to chill and have a drink. Didn't eat in the restaurant but there are a few good ones nearby and we were beside The Art Institute, Cultural Centre & Macys. Staff were friendly. Would recommend it as a base to tour the city. *

78. Review: James Chicago; the luxurious nice hotel as it was advertised. I didn't want stay in this hotel, but my wife insisted. Ok, so when I booked the ticket, it cost me $299 for one room. $299! I could get a new honeycomb android tablet with dual core processor at that price point! The room was stylish though, it looked nice. There was a TV, and the beds were fine. Although I couldn't quite understand why they had Wifi and no computer. Why would I even need wifi if there is no computer? What were they thinking!? The experience I had with James Chicago was a bit below of what I had expected. I mean the food available there wasn't very tasty at all. I had to wait in a long line to get the ticket and I was also hoping to browse the internet, but they had no computer, only wifi. That's like only having bread, without any fillings to make it into a sandwich! *

AI Explanation: The reviewer's tone and language suggest that they are intentionally downplaying their experience at the hotel. They mention that the room was "stylish though, it looked nice", but then proceed to list several criticisms, including the lack of a computer and the quality of the food. Additionally, their comparison of the hotel price to a tablet is an obvious exaggeration, indicating that they are trying to make the hotel seem overpriced.

83. Review: After reading some of the most recent reviews I'm really perplexed. I didn't know what to expect, but I was most pleasantly surprised. Just as all the past reviews, both negative and positive, have stated, you can't beat the location of this hotel. It's perfect. We had a big spacious room in the old tower. We avoided the expensive pitfalls of the hotel extras such as bottled water and items in the room fridge. The beds were great, the rooms were kept clean and the staff was very friendly. Great martinis in the hotel bar. I really can't understand the negative reviews. I know you can't please everyone, but in some cases I simply don't believe their claims. I've traveled a lot and have stayed in plenty of hotels. This is a great hotel! *

AI Explanation: The review appears to be deceptive because it uses overly positive and generic language, such as "most pleasantly surprised", "perfect location", and "great hotel". Additionally, the reviewer dismisses negative reviews without providing any specific counterarguments or evidence, which suggests that they may be trying to manipulate potential guests into booking a room.

88. Review: I had heard good things regarding the plush accomidations at The Talbott Hotel in Chicago. I thought it would be a special treat to take my 13 year old daughter to spend a weekend with mom, shopping and enjoying a bit of Chicago's exciting night life. I found The Talbott Hotel's website and decided The American Girl Package they offer was what I was looking for. The price sounded reasonable, so I booked a room. The two of us were so very excited to spend some time together. We arrived at the hotel to check-in at 5:00 on that Friday afternoon. After making us wait for 15 minutes while trying to find my reservation they informed me the room wouldn't be available for another hour. They blamed this on shortage of maids that day. They did manage to find us a table in one of their cafe's but this wasn't a good start to our special weekend. When we were finally allowed to go to our room we found that the doll-sized travel bed that is included in the package wasn't in the room. This disappointed my daughter, she was looking forward to that. While they did find a bed and bring it to us it just wasn't the surprise we had imagined. The rest of the weekend went by fairly smoothly. We managed to have a good time together even though the service wasn't quite what is claimed on the website. Would I go to the Talbott Hotel again? Probably not. *
