Instructions — Please Read Carefully

In this experiment, you will complete 16 questions.

Each question will involve a hotel review, and your task is to decide whether the review is truthful (written by a real customer) or deceptive (fake, written to create a misleading impression of the hotel).

For every question, you will go through the following steps:

Make your own judgment: Read the review carefully and decide whether it is truthful or deceptive.
2.
Rate your confidence: Indicate how confident you are in your decision.
3.
Review the AI explanation: You will then see an AI's explanation about why the review is considered truthful or deceptive.
4.
Reconsider your decision: After reading the explanation, you will be asked whether you want to keep or change your answer.
5.
Rate your confidence again: Indicate your confidence level after seeing the AI explanation.
6.
Evaluate the explanation: Finally, rate how convincing the AI's explanation was for you.

Now, you will solve a demo task to understand before the experiment begins. Thank you!

Q1

Now the real experiment begins!

13. Review: The James Chicago Hotel is located right in the heart of the one and only, downtown Chicago. This wonderful hotel has many classy and down to earth boutique's, and the views are breath-taking. The hotel just has a warm feeling to it, and the hotel staff is more than excellent. This hotel is situated right across from the Magnificent Mile, and only minutes away from the world famous shopping, dining, and fun for all ages. The James is modern and luxurious. The James is definately a hotel that I would recommend and will go back to in years to come. *

This hotel is situated right across from the Magnificent Mile, and only minutes away from the world famous shopping, dining, and fun for all ages. The James is modern and luxurious. The James is definately a hotel that I would recommend and will go back to in years to come. *

AI Explanation: This review appears to be overly promotional, using phrases such as "one and only", "wonderful hotel", and "breath-taking views" that are typically found in marketing materials. Additionally, the reviewer uses absolute language ("excellent", "definitely") without providing specific examples or details to support their claims, which is a common trait of deceptive reviews.

18. Review: This hotel was not worth it. From the moment we walked into the hotel lobby through check out, the staff were rude and contemptuous. Rooms were only serviceable, and certainly did not live up to the pompous self-descriptions on the website. The bathroom porthole and sliding door were odd and inconvenient. The 'fitness centre' was tiny and poor. We would not come here again. *

Rooms were only serviceable, and certainly did not live up to the pompous self-descriptions on the website. The bathroom porthole and sliding door were odd and inconvenient. The 'fitness centre' was tiny and poor. We would not come here again. *

AI Explanation: This review provides specific, detailed criticisms of the hotel's staff, rooms, and amenities, which suggests that it is a genuine account from a dissatisfied guest. The reviewer also mentions specific features of the hotel, such as the bathroom porthole and sliding door, which adds to the credibility of their complaint.

23. Review: I had to go down to Chicago one weekend for the graduation ceremony of my cousin. It was a sudden trip and I didn't even have the time to book a hotel before hand. When I showed up in Chicago and asked my taxi driver to take me to the nearest good hotel, he took me to Omni Chicago Hotel. I was impressed with how clean it was and they didn't have a problem with getting me a room even though I didn't have a reservation. The staff was friendly to me the entire time I was in the hotel, which was just a short two nights, and the cleaning service was top notch. *

AI Explanation: The reviewer's account is straightforward and lacks any suspiciously glowing language or overly promotional tone. 28. Review: We stayed in the Amalfi in July 2010, 4th of July weekend. I was very * apprehensive about leaving my Diesel Ford Excursion with the valet at Amalfi. It has a few modifications to the engine and can be damaged if not operated correctly. I explained the procedure to the valet drivers, and felt like it was a complete waste of time. When the vehicle was returned to me the valet driver did not let it idle down and cool the turbo off as I had instructed. When I tried to start it, it wasn't happy, but did finally start. I was so relieved to get it back I just wanted to leave. Driving away I noticed that the top speed recorded on the GPS was 105mph!!! (previous top speed was 95mph, done a few days earlier driving across South Dakota). I could just picture the flying Ferrari scene in Ferris Bueller's Day Off. I couldn't imagine where in the crowded Chicago traffic they found a place to go that fast, though it wouldn't take long to make that happen (see reference to modified engine above). A little while later we stopped for lunch and I noticed a dent in the front bumper. I contacted the hotel and was referred to their claims people. No remedy. Lesson learned. Brett

AI Explanation: The review is overly dramatic and exaggerated, with the author using hyperbole to describe the valet's alleged speeding ("I could just picture the flying Ferrari scene in Ferris Bueller's Day Off") and making a clear attempt to elicit sympathy from readers. Additionally, the tone of the review is confrontational and accusatory, which is not typical of genuine complaints about hotel services.

AI Explanation: The review is overly flattering, using phrases such as "one of the finest hotels I have stayed at in a long time", "elegance and beauty", "breathtaking", and "above a 4 star rating" without providing specific details or criticisms. This suggests that the reviewer may be trying to promote the hotel rather than provide an honest assessment, making the review deceptive.

38. Review: I was in Chicago for a convention and stayed at the Sheraton towers. I * had a negative experience because I got about one dozen very painful bites by bed bugs on my torso. It made attending the conference uncomfortable. The staff changed the sheets but could not move me to another room, as the conference had booked the whole hotel. After the sheets were changed, I got no more bites, thankfully. Despite this, I managed to enjoy the stay. I liked the location next to the river, and the fact that it was easy to walk to Magnificent Mile.

48. Review: Not worth the price, even a little bit. A week prior to scheduled check-in, receiving an email for a room upgrade and accepting, of course, upon arrival, nobody knows about it. Typical. After nobody was doing anything about it, I notified them of this stay's review will be posted on the newly-developing TheChicagoCritic . Com, all of a sudden they figured out the problem and even offered an early check-in. Too little, Too late. Very small room with 2 queens instead of the 'Select King' I was supposed to have. Windows didnt open, TV took forever to change channels and the bathroom fan was not controllable. The fabulous Lodge Net system that every hotel in the world uses for ease of checkout for guests, well there was no check out feature. AI Explanation: The review contains excessive profanity and personal attacks ("shit hole", "nobody was doing anything about it"), which are typical characteristics of deceptive reviews. 53. Review: From checkin to departure a poorly run hotel. It took 30 minutes in line to check in because only one clerk was on duty. Another person, perhaps the manager, was in the back room but never came out to help the check in clerk even as the line grew. The hotels elevators are small resulting in 10 minute waits to get up and down floors, especially when 1 of the 3 breaks, as seems to be frequent occurrence. After specifically asking for a room away from the elevators, I was assigned to a room directly across from them, necessitating another 20 minute wait in line. The room smelled of mildew and water dripped from the ceiling the first night. I requested a news paper be delivered to my room - it appeared on the morning and never again. Basically, the hotel is understaffed and poorly trained. Never again !

AI Explanation: The reviewer provides specific, detailed complaints about their experience, including wait times, room assignments, and maintenance issues, which suggests a genuine and frustrating stay. The use of specific times and events, such as the 30-minute check-in line and the 20-minute wait to change rooms, adds to the credibility of the review. 58. Review: My wife and I stayed at the Conrad Chicago Hilton a few weeks back. *

I had a conference in the Windy City, and my wife decided she'd come along to do some shopping. First off let me say, typically I LOVE staying in hotels - any chance I get, i'll spend it away from home in a comfy hotel bed. That said, this place was terrible. The room had a slight odor to it, kind of a fishy smell. The people at the front desk were rude to us. And I found a soiled pair of women's panties under the bed. Gross! Not to mention that once we got home, we both had bug bites up and down our legs--- now we're worried we brought bedbugs home with us! If I could take this trip back I would. What a terrible place. AI Explanation: The reviewer provides specific details about their negative experiences, including the behavior of the staff, the condition of the rooms, and the quality of the fitness centre, which suggests a genuine and honest assessment of their stay. The tone is critical but not overly dramatic or exaggerated, which further supports the idea that the review is truthful. 63. Review: I was scheduled to stay at the Hard Rock in June, but had to cancel. I had booked the hotel back in January. When I called six days before my arrival date to cancel, I was told that I would be charged for my stay because I did not cancel seven days in advance. I told the customer service rep that I had never heard of such a practice, but she said, in a very smug manner, that I was told back in January. I honestly don't remember being told of the cancellation policy, but think it is a unprofessional practice to capture some additional dollars since it is not an industry standard to require a seven day cancellation policy when you book directly with the hotel. I, for one, will never stay at a Hard Rock hotel and will make sure that my friends and business associates know of this unfair practice. *

I, for one, will never stay at a Hard Rock hotel and will make sure that my friends and business associates know of this unfair practice. *

AI Explanation: The reviewer's emotional language and vague memories of the cancellation policy, combined with their absolute statements about never staying at a Hard Rock hotel again and warning others, suggest an exaggerated and potentially falsified account. The reviewer's claim that they don't remember being told of the cancellation policy, despite it being a standard practice for hotels to inform guests of such policies at the time of booking, raises suspicions about the truthfulness of their story. The review appears to be motivated by a desire to punish the hotel rather than provide an objective account of their experience.

68. Review: I made my reservation at the Hilton Chicago believing I was going to be staying in a classy hotel with many amenities. Unfortunately, my stay at the Hilton Chicago went downhill from the moment I checked in. There was only one clerk at the front desk, and several guests already waiting ahead of me. Once I finally got checked in and located my room, I discovered that neither of my room keys worked and had to make my way back to the front desk. Finally I made it into my room. It appeared nice enough until I went to use the bathroom and found the toilet clogged. The manager moved me into a new room, so I can't complain too much, but still it was a hassle. Finally settled, I was able to relax for the rest of my evening and was looking forward to sleeping in the next morning. That is -- until the front desk called me at 5 am with a wake up call I had not requested! Needless to say, my overall experience with this hotel left much to be desired and I will choose other accommodations for my next trip to Chicago. *

Unfortunately, my stay at the Hilton Chicago went downhill from the moment I checked in. There was only one clerk at the front desk, and several guests already waiting ahead of me. Once I finally got checked in and located my room, I discovered that neither of my room keys worked and had to make my way back to the front desk. Finally I made it into my room. It appeared nice enough until I went to use the bathroom and found the toilet clogged. The manager moved me into a new room, so I can't complain too much, but still it was a hassle. Finally settled, I was able to relax for the rest of my evening and was looking forward to sleeping in the next morning. That is -- until the front desk called me at 5 am with a wake up call I had not requested! Needless to say, my overall experience with this hotel left much to be desired and I will choose other accommodations for my next trip to Chicago. *

AI Explanation: The reviewer provides a detailed and specific account of their negative experiences at the Hilton Chicago, including concrete examples of issues they encountered, such as a clogged toilet and an unwanted wake-up call. The reviewer also acknowledges that the manager took steps to address their problems, which suggests that they are attempting to provide a balanced and honest assessment of their stay. The tone is critical, but the language used is descriptive and factual, rather than emotional or exaggerated, which further supports the conclusion that the review is truthful.

73. Review: Stayed here for 5 nights while visiting Chicago for the first time. The location is great, the hotel has been recently renovated and our room was very spacious with two bathrooms. The lobby is a great place to chill and have a drink. Didn't eat in the restaurant but there are a few good ones nearby and we were beside The Art Institute, Cultural Centre & Macys. Staff were friendly. Would recommend it as a base to tour the city. *

78. Review: James Chicago; the luxurious nice hotel as it was advertised. I didn't want stay in this hotel, but my wife insisted. Ok, so when I booked the ticket, it cost me $299 for one room. $299! I could get a new honeycomb android tablet with dual core processor at that price point! The room was stylish though, it looked nice. There was a TV, and the beds were fine. Although I couldn't quite understand why they had Wifi and no computer. Why would I even need wifi if there is no computer? What were they thinking!? The experience I had with James Chicago was a bit below of what I had expected. I mean the food available there wasn't very tasty at all. I had to wait in a long line to get the ticket and I was also hoping to browse the internet, but they had no computer, only wifi. That's like only having bread, without any fillings to make it into a sandwich! *

AI Explanation: The reviewer's tone and language suggest a biased and exaggerated account of their experience at James Chicago, with unrealistic expectations, such as comparing the room price to the cost of an android tablet. The reviewer's criticism of the hotel's WiFi without a computer seems unreasonable and overly dramatic, indicating a potential attempt to mislead readers. The overall negative tone and emphasis on minor issues also raise suspicions about the reviewer's genuine intentions.

83. Review: After reading some of the most recent reviews I'm really perplexed. I didn't know what to expect, but I was most pleasantly surprised. Just as all the past reviews, both negative and positive, have stated, you can't beat the location of this hotel. It's perfect. We had a big spacious room in the old tower. We avoided the expensive pitfalls of the hotel extras such as bottled water and items in the room fridge. The beds were great, the rooms were kept clean and the staff was very friendly. Great martinis in the hotel bar. I really can't understand the negative reviews. I know you can't please everyone, but in some cases I simply don't believe their claims. I've traveled a lot and have stayed in plenty of hotels. This is a great hotel! *

AI Explanation: The review seems overly positive and defensive, with the author going out of their way to disparage negative reviews and emphasize their own travel experience, which raises suspicions about its authenticity. The use of phrases such as "I really can't understand the negative reviews" and "I simply don't believe their claims" also suggests that the author may be trying to manipulate the reader's perception. Additionally, the review lacks specific criticisms or areas for improvement, which is unusual for a genuinely truthful review.

88. Review: I had heard good things regarding the plush accomidations at The Talbott Hotel in Chicago. I thought it would be a special treat to take my 13 year old daughter to spend a weekend with mom, shopping and enjoying a bit of Chicago's exciting night life. I found The Talbott Hotel's website and decided The American Girl Package they offer was what I was looking for. The price sounded reasonable, so I booked a room. The two of us were so very excited to spend some time together. We arrived at the hotel to check-in at 5:00 on that Friday afternoon. After making us wait for 15 minutes while trying to find my reservation they informed me the room wouldn't be available for another hour. They blamed this on shortage of maids that day. They did manage to find us a table in one of their cafe's but this wasn't a good start to our special weekend. When we were finally allowed to go to our room we found that the doll-sized travel bed that is included in the package wasn't in the room. This disappointed my daughter, she was looking forward to that. While they did find a bed and bring it to us it just wasn't the surprise we had imagined. The rest of the weekend went by fairly smoothly. We managed to have a good time together even though the service wasn't quite what is claimed on the website. Would I go to the Talbott Hotel again? Probably not. *
